The U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission will conduct a public hearing on May 24 and May 25, 2007 on The Extent of the Government's Control of China's Economy, and the Implications for the United States. On Thursday May 24, the hearing will be held in Room 562 in the Dirksen Senate Office Building, First Street and Constitution Avenue, NE, Washington, DC 20510. The following day, Friday, May 25, the hearing will be held in Room 385, Russell Senate Office Building, located at the corner of Delaware & Constitution Avenues.

The hearing will address China's use of coordinated industrial policies and State-Owned Enterprises to further its economic development. Witnesses have been requested to provide information about the nature and activities of China's State-owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission (SASAC), the pace of economic reform in China, China's 11th "Five Year Plan" for economic development, the impact of Beijing's economic policies on the United States, and whether such policies violate the commitments made by member-nations of the World Trade Organization.

To better understand these issues, the Commission has invited members of Congress, Administration officials, and experts from academia and industry to testify.

Hearing Co Chairs: Commissioners Jeffrey Fiedler, Kerri Houston and Michael R. Wessel
