

Nicholas Consonery, Director of Asia, Eurasia Group

Nicholas Consonery is a director of Eurasia Group's Asia practice and leads the firm's advisory and consulting work on China. He has a particular expertise in economic and financial policies in mainland China, and is a leading analyst for the investment industry on China's financial and economic reforms. He also has extensive experience formulating and reviewing corporate government affairs and strategic engagement programs in China.

Prior to joining Eurasia Group, Nicholas worked as a political and security risk analyst in Washington, DC. Previously, he worked with the Foreign Commercial Service at the US Consulate in Shanghai. Prior to that he worked with a private equity firm in Tianjin, China, and also was a journalist at the American Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai. Nicholas appears frequently as an expert commentator for networks such as Bloomberg, CNBC, and Fox, and his research is often cited by mainstream media publications.

Nicholas holds an MA in Asian Studies from the George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs as well as a BA in Political Science and Asian Studies from Furman University. He received a David Boren Graduate Fellowship to attend Fudan University in Shanghai, where he studied Chinese public policy and economics. He also completed language training in China at the Shanghai International Studies University and the East China Normal University.