REVIEW COMMISSION

Hearing on China's Military Modernization and U.S. Export Controls

Opening Statement of Larry M. Wortzel
Chairman

March 17, 2006
Washington, DC

Good morning and welcome back to the U.S.-China Commission's hearing on China's Military Modernization and U.S. Export Controls. Today we focus on the utility and effectiveness of U.S. national security controls on exports to China of dual-use technologies. That is, technologies with both military and civil applications.

Commissioners William Reinsch and Fred Thompson will co-chair the three panels today. Both Commissioners have extensive experience with export control issues. Senator Michael Enzi will join us as along with representatives from the Executive Branch and non-governmental experts. The witnesses will discuss the effectiveness of export controls and how they impact American industries.

I will now turn the microphone over to Commissioner Reinsch who will introduce today's panelists.
