Steven Feldstein
Nonresident Fellow, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

Steven Feldstein is the holder of the Frank and Bethine Church Chair of Public Affairs and an associate professor at Boise State University. He is also a nonresident fellow at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in the Democracy, Conflict and Governance Program. Previously, he served as a deputy assistant secretary in the bureau of democracy, human rights and labor at the U.S. Department of State with responsibility for Africa, international labor affairs, and international religious freedom. He has also served as the director of the office of policy at the U.S. Agency for International Development, as well as counsel on the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee. His research interests include the intersection of technology, democracy, and human rights; U.S. foreign policy; and Africa policy. He is currently writing a book about the global spread of digital repression. His articles and commentary have appeared in the BBC, Financial Times, Foreign Affairs, The Guardian, Journal of Democracy, Just Security, The National Interest, Quartz, Salon, *Wall Street Journal, War on the Rock*s, World Politics Review, The Washington Post, and The Conversation. He received his B.A. from Princeton and his J.D. from Berkeley Law.