

Dr. Zack Cooper

Senior Fellow, American Enterprise Institute and Co-Director, Alliance for Securing Democracy

Dr. Cooper is a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute and co-director of the Alliance for Securing Democracy. He also teaches at Georgetown University and Princeton University, and co-hosts the “Net Assessment” podcast for War on the Rocks. Dr. Cooper's work focuses primarily on U.S. strategy in Asia, including alliance dynamics and U.S.-China competition. He previously worked as the senior fellow for Asian security at the Center for Strategic and International Studies and a research fellow at the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments. He also served on staff at the National Security Council and the Department of Defense. He received a BA from Stanford University and a MPA, MA, and PhD from Princeton University. He is writing a book examining how militaries change during power shifts.

Dr. Cooper has not previously testified before the Commission.