ABOUT THE COMMISSION

The U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission (the Commission) was created by the United States Congress in October 2000 with the legislative mandate to monitor, investigate, and submit to Congress an annual report on the national security implications of the bilateral trade and economic relationship between the United States and the People's Republic of China, and to provide recommendations, where appropriate, to Congress for legislative and administrative action.

In accordance with its mandate, the Commission focuses its work and study on the following eleven areas: proliferation practices, economic transfers, energy and natural resources, foreign investment, military and security affairs, cyber activities, economic conditions, foreign affairs, compliance and enforcement, freedom of information, and product safety.

You can review the Commission's mandate in detail at <http://www.uscc.gov/about/uscc-charter>.

MAJOR DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Under the direction of the Director for Security and Foreign Affairs or Executive Director, the position is responsible for policy and issue analysis primarily in the fields of security and foreign affairs. This position requires the ability to:

1. Monitor, investigate, and assess developments relevant to the Security and Foreign Affairs Team's portfolio including, but not limited to, the topics identified in "requirements and qualifications" below.
2. Draft detailed written and oral analyses and assessments of issues within the Security and Foreign Affairs Team's portfolio.
3. Work with designated hearing co-chairs, senior staff, and team members to plan and organize Commission hearings.
4. Serve as a subject matter expert and advisor on Chinese security and foreign affairs issues and U.S. policy responses for Commissioners, Members of Congress and their staffs, and Congressional committees.
5. Draft assigned portions of the Commission's Annual Report.
6. Draft Congressional testimony, talking points, editorials, and other communications for Commissioners to a wide variety of audiences and represent the staff at conferences and with government, academia, and private sector groups.
7. Develop and sustain a professional network with China analysts in the U.S. government, private sector, and academia.
8. Perform other duties as assigned.

REQUIREMENTS AND QUALIFICATIONS

1. Superior ability to present information clearly and concisely through both written and oral reports.
2. Superior research, analytical, and evaluative skills, including the ability to synthesize and analyze large amounts of disparate data on emerging and/or controversial issues.
3. Demonstrated knowledge of China's foreign relations, particularly in the Indo-Pacific and with the United States, including an understanding of the drivers, actors, and conduct of China's foreign policy.
4. Demonstrated knowledge of Chinese security issues, including China's military strategy, how China uses its military to advance its national interests, the capabilities of the People's Liberation Army, and domestic security concerns.

5. Demonstrated knowledge of U.S. foreign policy related to China and the Indo-Pacific (including U.S. alliances and other partnerships in the region) and U.S. military strategy, capabilities, and activities in the Indo-Pacific.
6. Bachelor's degree or higher.

HIGHLY DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

(Not required, but may be considered in the selection process)

1. Experience working on Capitol Hill (relevant work in a Member's office, on Committee staff, or related work with regular duties interacting with Congress).
2. Graduate degree in a relevant field, such as Asian Studies, International Relations, Political Science, Security Studies, or Asian History.
3. Experience living and/or working in China, Taiwan, or Hong Kong.
4. Ability to speak and read Mandarin Chinese, to include ability to effectively utilize sources of electronic and print information.
