Edward Fishman

Senior Research Scholar, Columbia University Center on Global Energy Policy

Edward Fishman is a foreign-policy expert, business operator, and investor with experience spanning government service, technology startups, media, and thank tanks. An expert on the intersection of business, economics, and national security, Mr. Fishman is a Senior Research Scholar at the Center on Global Energy Policy and an Adjunct Professor of International and Public Affairs at Columbia University, where he teaches a graduate-level course on economic statecraft and strategy. He is concurrently an Adjunct Senior Fellow at the Center for a New American Security and a Nonresident Senior Fellow at the Atlantic Council.

From 2015 to 2017, Mr. Fishman served at the U.S. Department of State as a member of the Secretary's Policy Planning Staff. In that role, Mr. Fishman advised Secretary of State John Kerry on Europe and Eurasia and led the staff's work on economic sanctions, long-range strategic planning, and international order and norms. Before joining the Policy Planning Staff, Mr. Fishman was the Russia and Europe Lead in the State Department's Office of Economic Sanctions Policy and Implementation, where he played a central role in designing and negotiating international sanctions in response to Russia's aggression in Ukraine. Earlier, Mr. Fishman served as a member of the Iran sanctions team, where he developed policies to strengthen sanctions against Iran and maintain pressure during the international nuclear negotiations. Mr. Fishman has also served at the Pentagon as special assistant to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and at the Treasury Department as special assistant to the Under Secretary for Terrorism and Financial Intelligence.

A native of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, Mr. Fishman holds a B.A. in History from Yale University, an M.Phil. in International Relations from the University of Cambridge, and an M.B.A. from Stanford University.

Mr. Fishman has not previously testified for the Commission.