

Jordan Link

Independent Researcher

Jordan Link is an independent researcher who focuses on understanding the strategic and economic challenges that the Chinese Communist Party presents for the future of U.S. foreign policy.

Previously, Mr. Link was the China policy analyst for National Security and International Policy at the Center for American Progress (CAP). Before joining CAP, Mr. Link worked as the research manager of the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies China-Africa Research Initiative. He also worked at National Defense University's Center for the Study of Chinese Military Affairs.

Mr. Link has an M.A. in Asian studies from the Elliott School of International Affairs at George Washington University and a B.A. in international relations from the College of William & Mary. He is professionally proficient in Mandarin Chinese.

Mr. Link has not previously testified before the Commission.