

Richard Weitz

Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Political-Military Analysis, Hudson Institute

Dr. Richard Weitz is Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Political-Military Analysis at Hudson Institute. His current research focuses on relations among Russia, China, and the United States, encompassing regional and functional issues as well as scenarios for future great-power relations.

Dr. Weitz received a Ph.D. in political science from Harvard University (Ph.D. in Political Science), an M.Phil. in Politics from Oxford University, an M.Sc. in International Relations from the London School of Economics, and a B.A. in Government from Harvard College. Before joining Hudson in 2005, Dr. Weitz worked for several other academic and professional research institutions as well as the U.S. Department of Defense, where he received an Award for Excellence from Office of the Secretary of Defense. He is proficient in Russian, French, and German.

Dr. Weitz has authored or edited several books, monographs, and reports, most recently including The New China-Russia Alignment: Critical Challenges to U.S. Security (2022), “Countering Emerging Russian and Chinese Hypersonic Threats” (2021), Assessing the Collective Security Treaty Organization (2018). Dr. Weitz has also published in journals such as Survival, Arms Control Today, and the Journal of Strategic Studies, along with many others. Dr. Weitz’s commentary has also appeared in Foreign Policy, The Diplomat, and Forbes. Dr. Weitz has appeared on the BBC, CNN, and C-SPAN, among other media platforms.

Dr. Weitz has testified before the Commission twice, including most recently at its 2019 hearing titled “An Emerging China-Russia Axis? Implications for the United States in an Era of Strategic Competition.”