

Christian Curriden

Defense Analyst, RAND Corporation

Christian Curriden is a defense analyst at the RAND Corporation. His work at RAND has mostly focused on the People's Liberation Army's (PLA) approaches to research and development (R&D) and artificial intelligence. He also conducts research on China's science and technology environment, Chinese military activities abroad, and Korea. Mr. Curriden's experience working and studying in China has included the completion of the State Department Critical Language Scholarship, research on Chinese public opinion of North Korea at Nanjing University, and writing market reports for Fortune 500 companies at a consulting firm in Beijing. He has also conducted both primary and secondary source research in Korean on Northeast Asian diplomacy and lived in South Korea for two years as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Mr. Curriden has not previously testified before the Commission.