

Dan Harris

Partner, Harris Bricken

Dan Harris is a founding member of Harris Bricken, an international law firm with lawyers in the United States, Brazil, China, and Spain. Dan mostly represents companies doing business in emerging market countries. Most of his time is spent helping American and European companies navigate Asia or Latin America by working with the international lawyers at his firm in setting up companies overseas (WFOEs, Rep Offices and Joint Ventures), drafting international contracts, protecting IP, and overseeing M&A transactions. He also often works with companies in figuring out and reducing their foreign country legal risks. Dan writes and speaks extensively on international law, with a focus on protecting foreign businesses in their overseas operations. He is also a prolific and widely followed blogger, writing as the author of the award-winning China Law Blog. Dan has been interviewed on international law issues by Fortune Magazine, The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, Forbes, CBC, CSNBC, BBC, and CNN, among others, and many of his articles on international law have been published in leading publications, such as the Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg Law Reports, Forbes Magazine, Supply Chain Management Review, and the National Law Journal. Dan received his B.A. from Grinnell College and his J.D. magna cum laude from Indiana University School of Law.

Mr. Harris has testified before the Commission twice, most recently at the Commission's 2021 Hearing "U.S.-China Relations in 2021: Emerging Risks."
