

Jemima Baar

Independent Researcher

Jemima Baar is an independent researcher specializing in China's international security partnerships. She has been a research fellow at the Foreign Military Studies Office, part of the U.S. Army's Training and Doctrine Command G-2, a research intern at the Council on Foreign Relations, and a research assistant at the University of Cambridge's Centre for Geopolitics. She holds a bachelor's degree in Theology, Religion, and Philosophy of Religion from the University of Cambridge, a master's degree in International Affairs from Columbia University, where she was an International Fellow, and has studied Chinese at Peking University. Ms. Baar has published in War on the Rocks, the Jamestown Foundation's China Brief, Asian Affairs, and the International Journal of Asian Christianity.

Ms. Baar has not previously testified before the Commission.