

Bradley Martin
Senior Policy Researcher, RAND

Bradley Martin is a senior policy researcher at the RAND Corporation, where he has worked since 2012. His work has emphasized issues of vulnerability resulting from economic interdependence, strategic readiness impacts from logistics and infrastructure shortfalls, and the overlap between geopolitics and supply chain exposure. Prior to joining RAND, he served in the U.S. Navy as a surface warfare officer, retiring after 30 years of service as a Captain. He has a doctorate in political science from the University of Michigan, which he achieved prior to joining the Navy.

Dr. Martin has not previously testified before the Commission.