

Tarun Chhabra, Distinguished Visiting Fellow, Hoover Institution

Tarun Chhabra is a distinguished visiting fellow at the Hoover Institution and the head of national security policy at Anthropic. He previously served as deputy assistant to the president as well as coordinator for technology and national security at the White House National Security Council. He also has served as a director of strategic planning at the council, speechwriter to the secretary of defense, senior fellow at Georgetown's Center for Security and Emerging Technology and director of the Project on International Order and Strategy at the Brookings Institution.

Mr. Chhabra has not previously testified before the Commission.