

David Calhoun, Director, Baron

David Calhoun is a director at Baron, a political risk advisory firm, where he coordinates Baron’s work for clients in the critical minerals, energy, and technology sectors as well as China-focused reports for the Department of Defense’s Office of Net Assessment (ONA). He relied extensively on Chinese-language analysis to lead the production of Baron’s March 2024 report “Deep-Sea Minerals: The Next Arena of U.S.-China Competition” and has spent years monitoring developments in China’s seabed mineral sector. Mr. Calhoun also focuses on cross-Strait relations, China’s influence on strategic supply chains, and U.S.-China trade relations. Before joining Baron, he lived in Taiwan where he became proficient in Mandarin and was a visiting fellow at the Heritage Foundation’s Asian Studies Center. Mr. Calhoun holds a B.A. in political science and minors in economics and Chinese from Grove City College.

Mr. Calhoun has not previously testified before the Commission.