

Andy Rothman
Investment Strategist, Matthews Asia

Andy Rothman is an Investment Strategist at Matthews International Capital Management, an Asia-focused investment management firm, where he researches economic and political developments in China to support the firm's China fund and plays a leading role in shaping and presenting the firm's thoughts on how China should be viewed at the country, regional, and global level. Prior to joining Matthews in 2014, Mr. Rothman was the China macroeconomic strategist for CLSA. Mr. Rothman previously spent 17 years in the U.S. Foreign Service, with a diplomatic career focused on China, including as head of the macroeconomics and domestic policy office of the U.S. embassy in Beijing.

Mr. Rothman last testified before the Commission in June 2003.
