

Thilo Hanemann, Research Director and Economist, Rhodium Group

Thilo Hanemann is Director and Economist at Rhodium Group (RHG) leading the firm's work on global trade and investment. He coordinates RHG's research assets across different practice areas and supports the investment management, strategic planning, and policy analysis requirements of RHG clients within his fields of expertise. He is also Senior Policy Fellow at the Mercator Institute for China Studies, Europe's largest China think tank.

Mr. Hanemann's research focuses on new trends in global trade and capital flows, related policy developments, and the political and commercial dynamics of specific transactions. One of his areas of expertise is the rise of emerging economies as global investors, and the implications for host economies and the global economy. His most recent work focuses on the evolution of China's international investment position, and the economic and policy implications of this new trend.

Mr. Hanemann's research on emerging markets outward investment has been featured in the Financial Times, the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, and other national media. He has published numerous studies on the topic, among them two 2016 reports on Chinese investment in the United States—New Neighbors: 2016 Update Chinese Investment in the United States by Congressional District (April 2016) and the USCC report Chinese Investment in the United States: Recent Trends and the Policy Agenda (December 2016).

Before joining RHG, Mr. Hanemann worked in academia and the public sector in Europe, China, and the United States. He was educated at Free University Berlin, Nanjing University, and Columbia University in New York. He was awarded scholarships by the German National Academic Foundation, the Krupp Foundation and the German American Fulbright Commission.

Mr. Hanemann testified before the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission in 2013.
