

Mr. Thomas R. Howell
Partner, Dewey & LeBoeuf LLP

Thomas R. Howell has practiced international trade law for 30 years, including litigation, support for international negotiations, WTO disputes and legislation. A particular area of specialty has been developing comprehensive information about industrial policies, private commercial practices, science policy and economic systems outside of the United States. Publications relevant to China include: China's Promotion of the Renewable Electric Power Equipment Industry (National Foreign Trade Council, 2010); "China's New Antimonopoly Law: A Perspective from the United States," Pacific Rim Law & Policy Journal (January 2009); "The Multilateral Trading System and Transnational Competition in Advanced Technologies," in Goran Markland, et al (ed.) The Innovation Imperative (Cheltenham, UK: Edward Elgar, 2009); China's State-Directed Expansion of Oil Country Tubular Goods; China's Emerging Semiconductor Industry (Semiconductor Industry Association, 2003); "Competing Programs: Government Support for Microelectronics," in Charles W. Wessner (ed), Securing the Future (Washington, DC. National Academies Press, 2003); and Semiconductors in China (Semiconductor Industry Association, 1995).