

Mr. Ben Lowsen
China Advisor to U.S. Air Force

Ben Lowsen is a specialist in Chinese political and security affairs working as a China advisor for the U.S. Air Force's Checkmate office. He previously worked as an Asia advisor for the U.S. Navy and served in the U.S. Army as a field artillery officer and China specialist. He completed tours of duty in Germany, Korea, Qatar, the Pentagon, and two tours in China, serving as Assistant U.S. Army Attaché in Beijing from 2013 to 2016. Mr. Lowsen's experience includes policy and strategy coordination, military-to-military engagement, intelligence production and analysis, and bilateral negotiation. He is interested in Chinese political and military culture as well as military modernization, reform, and strategy. Mr. Lowsen received an M.A. from Harvard's Regional Studies - East Asia committee and a B.A. from U.C. Santa Barbara in music performance.

Mr. Lowsen has not previously testified before the Commission.