

Mr. Peter A. Dutton

U.S. Naval War College

Peter A. Dutton is Professor of Strategic Studies and Director of the China Maritime Studies Institute at the U.S. Naval War College. He became the Institute's director in May 2011. Professor Dutton's research focuses on maritime sovereignty and boundary disputes involving China, international law of the sea, and maritime strategy. Selected recent publications include: "The Sino-Philippine Maritime Row: International Arbitration and the South China Sea," (Center for a New American Security, March 2013), Twenty First Century Seapower (Routledge, 2012, edited, with Robert Ross and Oystein Tunsjo), "Three Disputes and Three Objectives, China and the South China Sea" (Naval War College Review, 2011), Military Activities in the EEZ: A U.S.-China Dialogue on Security and International Law in the Maritime Commons (China Maritime Study, December 2010), "Through a Chinese Lens" (U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings, April 2010) an article about China's U-shaped claim in the South China Sea, and "Carving Up the East China Sea," (Naval War College Review, 2007). Professor Dutton has also testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission. He is a retired Navy Judge Advocate and holds a Juris Doctor from the College of William and Mary, a Masters in National Security and Strategic Studies from the U.S. Naval War College (with honors) and a Bachelor's from Boston University (cum laude).