

Dr. Margaret Roberts, Assistant Professor of Political Science, University of California, San Diego

Margaret Roberts is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of California, San Diego. Dr. Roberts' research focuses on better measuring and understanding the political information strategies of authoritarian governments, with a specific focus on studying censorship and propaganda in China. She has also developed widely used methods for automated content analysis in the social sciences.

Dr. Roberts has not testified before the Commission previously.