Mr. Robert Guerra
Project Director for Internet Freedom, Freedom House, Washington, D.C.

Robert Guerra directs the Internet Freedom project at Freedom House, which aims to analyze the state of Internet freedom, to expand the use of anti-censorship technologies, to build support networks for citizens fighting against online repression and to focus greater international attention on the growing threats to users' rights. He is also a founding director of Privaterra - a Canadian based initiative that works with nongovernmental organizations to assist them with issues of data privacy, secure communications, information security, internet governance and internet freedom. He advises numerous non-profits, foundations and international organizations, including The OpenNet Initiative.
